The Bohemians of Frank have organized a band with Joe Stenberg as instructor. We hope soon to have a band in our town that will be able to render such pleasing music as that which the wind occasionally wafts over the hills from Blairmore.

Prof. R. A. Daly, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, of Boston, Mass., is in town and registered at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium. Professor Daly is one of the commissioners who is inspecting Turtle Mountain and the Frank mine.

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended upon. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all dealers.

Presbyterian Harvest Home at Little

Harvest Thanksgiving services were held in above church on Sunday last, Oct. 8th. The church was beautifully decorated with evergreens, wheat, oats, fruit, flowers, etc., which had a very pleasing effect. Over the pulpit hung the motto "The Lord of the Harvest." Before the pulpit a platform held a fine array of fruits, etc., nicely displayed. On either side two suitable and smaller mottoes hung. "O give thanks," and "Praise ye the Lord."

The morning service was well attended. The preacher, Rev. W. T. Young, of Frank, gave an interesting discourse, which was earnestly listened to by all. The evening service was a great success. Rev. A. S. Todd, B.A., of Blairmore, preached a fine sermon to a record congregation. Interest was also added to the evening service by the rendering of two class voluntaries, in excellent style by our church organist, Mrs. E. Keith, also Miss M. Williams sang a solo, which was rendered in fine voice and feeling.

On Monday evening a very enjoyable concert was held, after which the fruits, etc., were sold. After keen bidding, every article was sold and quite a respectable sum, nearly $40, was added to the church funds. The chair was taken by W. P. Williams, and after a few well chosen remarks, a very enjoyable program was gone through.

Mrs. E. Keith read in a masterly manner, "The Theologian's Tale," which was greatly enjoyed. Miss M. Williams sang a solo with such good effect that a return was necessary. K. L. Dawson, G. Evans, W. J. Evans and Mrs. E. Keith all added pleasure to the evening by their singing and in each case an encore was given. A duet by the Misses Hughes and a recitation by Miss Evans, all of whom had to respond to an encore, were greatly enjoyed. After a few remarks by the minister, Geo. H. Wyckley, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

Every praise is due to Mrs. W. P. Williams and Mrs. Frank Anderson in whose charge rested the decorations, for the able manner (along with many willing helpers) in which they carried out their duties.

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waukegan, Ill.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well." Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 31, Waukegan, Ill.

Another Grateful Woman
London, Ont.—I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was so weak and tired that I could not rest at night. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it.—Mrs. W. A. BURR, 3601 Dene St., London, Ont.

Appealed to Him
Two newboys sat in the gallery of a local theatre in which "Hamlet" was being played. The first time they had seen a play, and they were held breathless with excitement. In the last scene, when Hamlet had killed Laertes and the king, the queen had died of poison, and Hamlet of a poisoned wound, the second boy said to the first: "Golly, Bill, what a time for sellin' speesh!"

Mrs. Nordica at a garden party at Deal Beach said, apropos of her recent European tour: "Many good people refuse to be impressed by the armless and legless fragments of antique sculpture treasured in the museums of the world. "One day in the British museum a guide was recounting to a little knot of tourists the glories of the battered centaur when a Chicago meat salesman broke the recent hush with the question: "Excuse me, sir, but what would they feed a bloke like that on and eggs or hay?"—Washington Star.

"Gladys is very strict in her ideas about the appropriate touch in dress. "Is she?" "So much so, that when her half-sister died, she would not wear anything but half-mourning."—Baltimore American.

Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair alive and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 731, Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

AN AUTOGRAPH FIEND.

His Ruins to Get Letters and the Fate They Have Met.

The collecting of autographs dates back as far as the sixteenth century when men and women of light and leading were accustomed to carry about oblong volumes of vellum on which their friends and acquaintances were requested to write some motto or phrase under his or her signature.

It was not, however, until 1800 or thereabouts that collections of autographs began to assume a monetary value amongst the votaries of the hobby. About this time appeared on the scene the Autograph Fiend (the "A.F." referred to in the title), and he has been growing in numbers and enterprise ever since.

He is a veritable terror, sparing none, and the devices he will employ in order to trap the celebrity into giving his autograph are legion.

There are, of course, the "pros" and the "amateurs" of which two, though both are pretty bad, the "pros" are undoubtedly the worst, since his sole object is the transmitting of great men's signatures into the current coin of the realm; whereas to the amateur the hobby is one of real and absorbing interest.

One famous Frenchman sent him ten close-up portraits of his own handwriting—of earnest appeal; and Charles Dickens, who was staying at Boulogne at the time, wrote, in French, a short note of comfort to the man who signed himself "Miscellaneous." The letter concludes with the promise of the part of the writer to become godfather to the carpenter's child upon its baptism.

Needless to say, "the carpenter" was one of the noble army of autograph hunters.

The late R. L. Stevenson was the subject of much persecution by the A. F. Though at least one exceptionally considerate collector secured from him the following charming little note to his friend, "The time was at the Bannockburn (in the Pacific):

"You have sent me a slip to write on, you have sent me an addressed envelope, you have sent me my stamp, you have sent me my name right, and you have sent me my pen. I am glad to stand alone, you have sent me the stamps for your letter, I take a pleasure in it. Here, since you value it, I will send you a small note to care it by an unusual attention—here is the signature, I am sure, Stevenson."

"For the one civil autograph collector, Charles R. R."

The poet John Keats, however, was not so kind to his autograph-seeking correspondents—who were many—as Edgar Allan Poe, in whose opinion "the long which privilege of the collection of autographs is a natural and rational one."

Humming Bird Shoes.
Shoes made of the breast feathers of humming birds are the latest extravagance of footgear. And an awful extravagance it is. They are the creation of a type of shoe that takes about six months and many humming birds to make one pair, as the tiny birds are used to be made together to make a kind of cloth of feathers. The effect is very beautiful, the shoe gleaming with red and gold and green. (The reds may represent the blood of the slain humming birds.) But the cost of the person who wears them. A pair of these shoes cost only $25.00 in money. But they cost the lives of countless numbers of the most beautiful birds—so tiny and helpless—that nature ever created. And the saddest thing about it all is this—the shoes are made for women to wear!

Mourning Rings.
In the seventeenth century a somewhat morbid taste in rings was evinced by the custom of wearing memorial or mourning rings bearing the name and date of the death of the departed. These were often of elaborate design, enamelled in black and white, and a pleasantly suggestive type of ring at one time very popular was formed of two skeletons bent along the ring and holding the coffin on which the name and date were engraved.

Good Stunt.
At a military drill the command was given to raise the left leg. One man, however, raised his right leg, and, perceiving this, the officer exclaimed, "What idiot has raised both his legs?"

He Had Called It Off.
"Share, Reddy, and me want to be marrying the day. O'ye bruck the in-sengement."
"An' for p'widy did ye do that?"
"Reddy, she ran away an' married McNulty yesterday."

INSPECTOR OF PALACES.

One Royal Official in England Is Very

Mr. Sands, the Inspector of Buckingham Palace, is an official the public hear little of, but he nevertheless holds an important and responsible position, and at the end of the London season when the Court leaves Buckingham Palace has an especially busy time of it.

It is then that what is known to most householders as "Spring cleaning" is done at Buckingham Palace, and the work is carried out under the direction and supervision of Mr. Sands.

Several weeks before it is begun, says Pearson, he inspects all the departments in the palace, makes a note of any repainting or painting that will be required to be done in any of them. He also inspects all the lighting arrangements, and the water supply fittings, and sees that the drinking water is carefully tested.

A report of the results of the inspection is then made out and submitted to the King. When it has been approved by His Majesty it is recommended to be done by the Inspector is put in hand as soon as the Court leaves London at the end of the season.

Every apartment where any papering or painting is to be done is cleared of every vestige of furniture. Many of these rooms may contain valuable ornaments and pictures. These are all packed in specially designed steel-lined cases, and the furniture is removed and under his personal supervision.

A list is made of all the articles to be removed and given to the Inspector, who looks the cases and takes charge of the keys. The cases are then sent down to one of the large strong-rooms, of which there are three on the basement floor of the palace, where they are kept until the apartments from which the various articles have been removed are ready to be furnished again.

The large furniture is removed during the cleaning out or papering and the furniture is then moved into the large store-rooms on the second floor.

Part from the rooms that are repainted and painted, every room in the palace is cleaned out at this time of the year. The carpets in each room are first of all cleaned by the vacuum process and then it is taken up and sent down to the woodwork thoroughly scrubbed.

Twelve rooms a day are cleaned out in this way throughout the year. The palace has been done. A staff of ten washerwomen do the washing. Several of the parlours and state reception rooms at the palace are, of course, not carpeted, the floors being of old polished oak. The floors of each of these apartments during the annual cleaning have to be repolished, a laborious task which takes several weeks to complete.

Apart from the work mentioned the Inspector of the palace has a great many other things to see to. He has to see that a host of minor repairs throughout the palace are attended to, and has to see that everything from the locks on the doors to the window sash cords are in perfect order before he leaves the palace.

All the clocks in the palace are overhauled at this time of the year. This alone is in itself a big business, and it is done by contract. There are over three hundred clocks in the palace, and some of them are immensely valuable. There is a clock in the Queen's boudoir which was in the possession of Queen Elizabeth.

A Lightning Conductor

"The late Thomas Wentworth Higginson," said a Harvard instructor, "loved music, but not the extremely technical music of Richard Strauss, Ravel and others of that type. Colonel Higginson used to tell a story. He said that Strauss went one summer on a hunting trip in the mountains. It chanced that on a certain afternoon a terrific thunderstorm descended on a hunting party. The lightning, amid deluges of rain whipped by a roaring wind, the hunter and all sought shelter. Where, though, was Strauss?"

"Three friends stood out in alarm to look for him. They feared that in the wild chaos of the storm he had fallen down a precipice. After a long while they found him; they found him doing—what do you suppose?"

"Strauss stood bareheaded on the summit of a lofty crag. The lightning played about him in vivid, violent flashes; the man deluged him; the roaring wind flapped his coat-tails about his head, and the musician, a rained in his hand, was busily engaged on his bag in conducting the thunderstorm!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Weekly Payment Plan

The weekly payment plan affords wage-earners an easy and safe way of making provision for the future when their earning powers have ceased. For example, if a man, previously engaged 40 years to be deposited with the Canadian Government $1 a week until he was 65 for the purpose of buying a Canadian Government annuity, he would receive $200 a year for the remainder of his life. And if he died before he was 65 what he had paid, in accumulated at 3 per cent. interest, would be paid to his heirs. Full particulars concerning the scheme may be had by anyone over the age of 21 years, if he or she will apply to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, who will send you a booklet, and the Superintendent will tell you what amount of Annuity the payments will buy. C. P. R. Operate New Lines

It is stated that in a short time the entire line of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Moose Jaw, Outlook, Kerrobert and Macklin, in Saskatchewan, will be opened for traffic. Services have been operated for some time at either end of the line between Moose Jaw and Outlook and Macklin and Kerrobert, but it was only last month that the central portion of the line between Outlook and Kerrobert was completed.

It is now 207 miles from Moose Jaw to Macklin, and construction work was started north of Outlook in May, 1910. The new line leaves Moose Jaw in a northwesterly direction, and runs through a rich farming country. Eventually it will form a junction with the Lacombe-Castor Branch at Kerrobert. When the whole line is opened for traffic it will be a great boon to all classes of traffic in Saskatchewan, for not only will the farms along the right-of-way benefit, but it will give the towns and cities, now rapidly growing in the vicinity of the line, a direct new connection with the main line of the C. P. R. at Moose Jaw, Regina, Brandon, Winnipeg, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago.

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the action of which the blood stream is kept sweeping and flowing through the body at the rate of several miles an hour. "Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil." After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. This he called

An Austrian Agitation

There is a law of long standing in Austria forbidding women and children from joining any society of a political character. The women of that country have presented a gigantic petition to parliament asking for its repeal. A desire for equal suffrage is the cause.

BOY RUNS ERRAND

Humpy Skinner Tries to Do Kindness for Widow.

HAS ALL KINDS OF TROUBLE.

He Gets a Goat and a Jug and Tries to Deliver Them. Encounters Thirty Man, a Policeman Seeking Desperate and Convivial Souls.

By M. GUAD.
[Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary

THAT Skinner boy was on his way to his aunt's to ask her if she could lend his mother her borrowed goat when a woman at her gate halted him to say:

"Bub, I want some one to do an errand for."

"Yes'm," replied Humpy.

"He must be a honest boy."

"Yes'm."

"He must be a boy that will walk right along about his business instead of stopping to climb shade trees or chase cats."

"I'm such a boy."

"I hope you are. You look like a good boy. If I send you on an errand you think you can feel the responsibility of it?"

"I know I can, ma'am. I'm on an errand now for my mother, and I feel all the responsibility of it. I'm going to borrow a borrowed goat."

LIME ON THE FARM.

Best Way to Test It is to Try it on Small Patch.

Lime seems to be needed on parts of most farms. It corrects sourness, improves heavy soils, helps light soils to retain moisture, favors the growth of clover and alfalfa and checks the incidence of some plant diseases. The most certain way, according to Professor Brooks of the Massachusetts experiment station, to find out whether lime will help the soil is to try it on a small plot in a field to be tested. Apply twenty pounds of fresh selected lime to two square rods.

Beets are a good test crop, as they grow better upon a limed plot if the soil needed lime. An average of about one ton of lime to an acre will usually be enough. It can be used at any season when the land is not occupied by crops and when it can be plowed. It may be planted broadcast and worked into the soil with a harrow.

Professor Brooks has been looking up various sources of lime in New England markets, and he finds that it varies considerably in cost and desirability. Quiklime is really the cheapest form, because when buying it the purchaser does not have to pay for water that is taken up when slaking lime.

One hundred pounds of quiklime contains as much essential lime as 132 pounds of slaked lime, thirty-two pounds being moisture from the air, and containing as much as 178 pounds of raw limestone.

Lime can be slaked in small heaps by applying just water enough to wet the lime, using less than two pails of water to 100 pounds of lime. After a few days it will have crumbled to a powder. Most farmers make the lime before applying, as the unslaked lime is very disagreeable to use, even with a manure spreader protected with burlap.

Finely ground limestone or marl works well on light soils, but ground limestone costs more for the results obtained as compared with quiklime. Sometimes refined lime from tanneries is a very cheap source of lime, and it can usually be had for the hauling.

MAKE FARMHOUSE FIT.

Don't Build Camp City Dwelling on Your Spreading Green Fields.

In our great cities land is dear and houses must be adapted to small areas. Architects have studied how to get the most house on a limited space because the cost of moderate means cannot afford to buy a big lot. City houses are built on these condensed plans and are very well adapted to such conditions. But we are sure to see some of these city house plans being taken into the country. When set into the wide space of a farm, their look of harmony with their surroundings.

The farmhouse should have all the comforts and conveniences of the city house, but it should not look like the city house. It should be so designed as to fit into its surroundings. The old fashioned farm house, with its air of comfort and repose, is in better taste than the modern boudoirized city house.

Farmhouses can be tasteful and adapted to their location without being expensive, and they are to that effect. A tasteful house has a sale value in the country just as it has anywhere, and farmhouses should be built with this idea in view.

Above all this, however, is the pleasure of living in a tasteful country home, one that is adapted to its purpose and fitted to its location. There is a satisfaction here that is not reckoned in dollars, but is worth trying to get—National Stockman and Farmer.

A Good Chick Feed.

For a good cake for chicks as well as fowls and also for dogs take about a quart of cornmeal, a pint of wheat bran and a pint of flour. Mix with sufficient sour milk to make batter. Add two teaspoonfuls of soda stirred up in a little milk and salt to taste. The batter must not be made too thin, nor should the cakes be allowed to scorch. One big cake laid on the floor each day will make the little chicks grow beyond belief.

Eleven Persons With Lofly Ambitions Climb the Willoughby Ridge

On Wednesday afternoon of last week eleven young folk started out from Coleman to climb the noble and memorable Willoughby ridge of mountains; notable in that it is rare indeed that a man has named after him a mountain around the base of which cluster numerous shrubs with names similar to that of the honored person himself—willows; memorable in point of the vast numbers of tall firs, which have stood there for ages and which still stand there in spite of the fires and other means of destruction that have swept the other majestic mountains nearby and that have robbed them of their slightly splendor and pleasant perfumes. The trees on the Willoughby ridge stand like graceful and gentle giants welcoming the glad and gallant guests to its sunny and spacious summit.

The party whose inclinations ran so high as to attempt to reach the highest points on the Willoughby range, comprised the following: McEneaney D. A. McKinnon and F. McNeil; Misses B. McKinnon, M. Porter, A. Disney and A. McDonald; Messrs. Alex. McLean, R. B. Bartlett, N. M. Orr, W. L. Clark and J. D. S. Barrett. This happy party started out from the residence of E. Disney at 3 p.m., in a west-south-westerly direction and the tall trees were soon reached. At this point Messrs. Orr and Barrett, who were somewhat of the negro kind—had a greed for chicken (the kind, with the wings, we mean)—left the other members of the crowd to the trusty care of the able leader, Mr. McLean, and went due south in search of some of the feathered race, promising their fellow climbers that some degree of mercy would be shown towards the "fowls of the air"; that a wholesale slaughter would not take place for fear of overstocking the market and thereby causing a slump in beef and other meats. The gamesters travelled long, and after a wearisome hunt they returned to the main party with no game and congratulating themselves on being able to resist the temptation of shooting several hungry-looking beasts which hovered around like spectres from out of their time-worn games. The other members of the party had a pleasant journey and witnessed several rare transactions. Following their brave guide as minutely as the British soldiers followed their noble leader, Wolfe, up the heights of Algonquin, and remembering the unpleasant fate which befell Lord's wife, they refused to look back but bent their energies towards higher things, steadfastly gazing on the mountain top on which their whole minds were set and which meant for that evening, the zenith of their ambitions.

The summit of the highest mountain in that range was first reached at about 6 o'clock by Misses McKinnon and Porter and Mr. Clark. The other members of the party with the exception of Mrs. McKinnon and McDonald, followed closely in the wake of the adroit trio whose ability at mountain climbing has won them fame. Shortly after reaching the top, refreshments in abundance and drinks galore (of the lemonade variety) were partaken of with considerable relish and satisfaction. While the other successful members of the party were doing justice to the delectable edibles, Mr. Bartlett took a picture of them and after a close examination finding that the camera was not broken, the photographer repaired around the baskets and feasted, much to the satisfaction of the inner man. After lunch, the ladies, posing that quality of mind which enables a person to encounter danger and difficulties without fear or depression of spirits, tried the skill at shooting and made several well-aimed shots. It was decided that some pleasing name should be given that great eminence and it was therefore christened "Marguerite." At about 6.30 o'clock the mountain climbers commenced their descent but before they reached the bottom of "Marguerite" mountain the silver sun repaired to its chimerical cradle and the mighty moon shed its glad and golden glances across their pathway. However, Coleman was reached about 7.30 o'clock after a very pleasant event.

Instituted a Lodge at Macleod

There was a large gathering of sons of England at Macleod last night the occasion being the institution of a new lodge of the Order in that town. District Deputy F. T. Robins conducted the dedication of the lodge and installation of officers, and was ably assisted by President Holberton, Secretary Dawson and Bros. Elton, Pearson, Addison, Alcock, Short, V. Pearson, Clear, Orland and Wakelin, of Lethbridge; Pres. Baines and several brothers from Cowley; and members from Pincher Creek, Calgary and Medicine Hat. Thirty four candidates were initiated into the Red Rose degree, and these brethren were formed into the Duke of Connaught Lodge No. 322. The name of the new lodge is very appropriate, being conferred on the day his royal Highness sails for Canada. Bro. S. Lamberton was elected president, Bro. Beach, vice-pres.; Rev. Hall, chaplain, and F. J. Arthur, secretary, the remaining officers being filled by prominent citizens of Macleod. After the ceremonies the visiting brethren were entertained to a choice supper by the Macleod members, and the remainder of the evening devoted to harmony, a feature of the program being the rendering by Bro. Elton of his original compositions, "S. O. E." A hearty vote of thanks with musical honors was accorded to the visiting brothers, which was replied to by the visitors with three cheers for the members and lodge "Duke of Connaught." The lodge gets an excellent start, and the next meeting will see numbers nearly doubled.—Advertiser.

Fenia, B. C., Oct. 11.—John P. White of the International organization United Mine Workers of America has arrived here from Indianapolis.

The miners and many citizens were out to meet him, and he was escorted to the town hall by the Italian band.

Acting Mayor McIntyre welcomed him to the city, speaking briefly regarding the labor trouble, and expressing the hope that the visit of the president of the order would bring about a settlement of the dispute which had kept the miners idle all summer. Mr. White spoke briefly, thanking the mayor and citizens of the town for such a cordial welcome.

He had nothing to say as to what he intended to do further than that he did come to do what he could to bring about a settlement which would benefit both parties.

A Challenge

New Michel, 29th Sept. 1911
To the Editor.
Dear Sir:—Will you kindly insert the following in your valuable paper: "Charles Carver am willing to meet any man in Canada in the Welter Weight class. I have inserted this challenge in both Western and Eastern papers, and so far have failed to get any replies to my challenge. Failing to get any of the above I shall by claim to the Welter Weight Championship of Canada." Yours truly,

America's Evil

Andrew D. White, former president of Cornell University, says: "I would like to preach a sermon on the most disgraceful evil in America today—the terrible increase in the number of murders and the immunity from punishment of the guilty men. I would take my text from the Declaration of Independence, and at the conclusion of my sermon I would ask the congregation to sing that familiar hymn, 'A Charge to Keep I Have.' Ten years ago there were 117 murders annually to the million in the United States. Today there are 126. Across an imaginary line in Canada there are only seven murders to the million annually."—The Daily Patriot.

New C.P.R. Vice-President

Montreal, Oct. 11.—G. J. Bury, general manager of the western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been appointed vice-president in addition to his present office, with headquarters at Winnipeg. In other words, Mr. Bury is the successor to Sir Wm. Whyte and will have all the authority in the territory ruled over by the retiring head of the system in Western Canada. He first became identified with the C. P. R. as secretary to Sir W. C. Van Horne, later he was appointed a superintendent, with headquarters at North Bay and was transferred to Winnipeg as assistant general manager, in 1907, a year later, being advanced to the office of the general manager of the western lines. In railway and business worlds he is known as a man of great energy, splendid grasp and quickness of decision. The appointment was no surprise, as Mr. Bury is a railroader through and through, and is one of the most prominent men connected with railroad service today. He knows the business from A to Z.

A BAD BACK

Is a Warning that the Kidneys are Sick
A bad back turns every twenty-four hours into one dull round of pain and misery—you are lame in the morning, nagged all day by a dull throbbing headache, can't rest in the evening or sleep well at night. It hurts to bend over, straighten up, get up from a chair, or lift even a light weight. Any sudden twist, turn or awkward movement sends a tearing twinge of pain through the weak spot.

Happenings in and Around Blairmore

Thanksgiving Day, October 30th.
H. K. Lyon went to Calgary on Tuesday.

J. S. Murray, who was under the weather last week is around again. Mayor Cameron, of Coleman, was a visitor to our sanctum on Tuesday evening.

Jas. Burrows attended the Miners convention at Lethbridge on Wednesday.

The local scribes find that the letter box, which has recently been installed at the C.P.R. depot, is a very convenient thing.

A children's service was held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning last. The service was well attended and the children did their parts fairly well.

UNUSUAL.—One young lady of Blairmore said a few days ago that she enjoyed a few hours on the top of Turtle Mountain, where there was little to talk about.

Mrs. W. C. Lyman and Miss Agnes Green have been appointed delegates to represent the local union at the W.C.T.U. convention to be held in Calgary, October 13-16.

Rev. G. H. Wycherley preached in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening last, Rev. A. S. Tod going to Lillie to take charge of the former's work for that evening.

While returning from a fishing expedition, in which they were successful in capturing fifty good sized trout, K. Pegg and T. Cys. came upon a bear in the vicinity of Lillie but having only their shotguns with them they were unable to bring the black beauty home.

The Rocky Mountains Cement Company have men employed putting extra electric wires all over the town so as to enable the company to give their patrons generating instead of direct current and a much better service. We understand that metres will be installed in several buildings where considerable light is used.

A party of four, comprising Misses M. H. O'Brien and E. Davis, Rev. A. S. Tod and R. B. Bartlett climbed the Turtle Mountain on Saturday and report having a pleasant time. They made the ascent in good time but made the descent much quicker. Several nice pictures were taken of surrounding mountains and other beautiful scenery.

The ladies of the Central Baptist church will hold a basket social at Budd's hall, Victoria Street, on Wednesday evening, October 18th. Three attractive prizes will be given, first and second of which will be for the two prettiest baskets and the third prize will be for the basket realizing the highest price. Coffee and cake will be served, and everybody is invited.

The Royal Welsh Ladies' choir distinguished itself here on Tuesday evening last when they appeared before a large audience in the opera house. The singing, without a doubt, was some of the best ever heard in The Pass. Many people were in from outside towns and all, especially the Welsh folk, greatly enjoyed the performance and hope for an early return of those famous singers to Blairmore.

If there is anything at all in a person, an ocean voyage will generally bring it out.

A Dangerous Discovery

Made at the Rockefeller Institute For Scientific Discovery and
at Once Suppressed

By F. A. MITCHEL
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Two physicians devoted to the essential branch of their profession
sat in the Rockefeller institute, from which emanate most of the new ideas
we receive, discussing a problem in transfusion. They were Dr. Pendleton, who has begun the work of replacing knee and elbow joints that have become useless with those of other persons, and Dr. Slason, the prince of haematologists.

"He is time," said Dr. Pendleton,
"that we made some great step in transfusion. I don't mean in the process, but in the results attained. A way back in 1902 in London the blood of a dog was let into another dog, the blood of the latter being let out on the opposite side. What have we done since? Nothing more than transfuse blood for the purpose of temporarily maintaining life. Now, if one animal had been a bulldog, another a cat, and it had been noted and recorded that the recipient dog's disposition had been turned from fierceness to gentleness a great point would have been gained."

"That's a good idea of yours, doctor," replied Dr. Slason. "I wonder that it has never been advanced before. Yet we must remember it is only recently that we have in this institute the means for developing such original ideas."

"Then let us begin the development of this one."

"What do you propose?"

"Not in this case to operate with guinea pigs. We can do better with human beings. Suppose we take a solution of an especially bloodthirsty
sore and give him the blood of a mild,
soft spoken creature."

"A good suggestion. But I think I have a better one. By transfusing the blood between the sexes I think we shall get more pronounced results."

"Eureka!" exclaimed Dr. Pendleton enthusiastically, and of other hands
he grasped that of his coworker.

The two investigators found a man who was willing to submit to the transfusion process, he having been

"THE DOCTORS WERE AWFULLY LOVELY TO ME." To Mr. Slason, who was long afflicted with impotency, was long. An attempt to give him blood from but one woman was not attempted. A small quantity from each of a number was put into his veins, and without injury to either the subject or those who gave up a portion of their vital fluid.

George Wattles was the man who was operated upon. The operators simply told him that his blood had been replaced by that of other women.
He was for himself that they were women, but it did not occur to him that this might have any special effect upon him. He was in love with a very charming girl, but her parents would not permit her to marry him on account of his poor health. Indeed, one of the reasons for his attempting the transfusion was that he might recover his health and marry.

He was discharged from the hospital, but not to remain away continently. Every alternate day he must return and be under the observation of the doctors.

The first person Mr. Wattles went to see after his discharge was Miss Charlotte Sanger. He had advised her of the day and hour of his coming, and she was waiting for him impatiently. What was her surprise to see him come in what the room with that skip by which actors on the stage attempt to persuade young men, but which instead reminds us of boyish larks.

"Oh, Lottie dear," he exclaimed, putting out both hands and kissing her on each cheek, then looking at her with his head cocked sideways on his shoulders, "you can't imagine how nice
I feel. I'm just too well for anything."

Miss Sanger frowned. What had come over her lover?

"The doctors," continued her fiance,
"were awfully lovely to me—one of them was ever so handsome—and did me hurt even a little teeny weeny bit."

Miss Sanger looked at Mr. Wattles astounded.

"Why, Lottie dear," he exclaimed,
"with a pout, "how could you say that?
You love me any more?"

"I haven't changed, George."

"Then, what does it mean? You don't love me a bit?"

He tossed his head, and she saw a tear sparkle in his eye.

"Sit down, George, and tell me about the operation."

"She led him to a sofa; he drew her arm around his waist and, snuggling
up to her, began:

"Dr. Pendleton—he's the handsome one—made all the preparations; then Dr. Slason—I didn't like him, he's so cross—brought in a girl."

"A girl?"

"Yes. She was about eighteen years old, strong and healthy."

"And the blood of this girl now flows
in your veins?"

"Some of it. They opened a vein in me and a vein in the girl, and as the blood came into me I felt so funny.
Do you know, I wished Dr. Pendleton, the handsome one, would kiss me?"

"Oh, you did?"

"Yes. But the next day they gave me some blood from an older woman.
I didn't feel so nice when her blood
was put into me, did you?"

"The next day?"

"If it things were going wrong all the while, and do you know what I wanted to do?"

"I wanted to spank the baby."

"Miss Sanger said nothing for some time. When she did she asked:

"What's the matter? But she didn't know the doctor infused into you only the blood of women?"

"That's all. There was no man's blood."

Miss Sanger sat rigid. The expression on her face was not pleasant to look upon.

"I think you're real mean to me,"
said Mr. Wattles. "After being away from you so long and going through so much I expected you'd be nice to me. I don't mind I think you're horrid.
So there!"

He arose and flounced out of the room. In the hall he waited for her to call him back. But she didn't, and he reluctantly went away.

He did not return to her that day,
and the next he returned to the hospital for observation. When he went again to see his ladylove, hoping to make up what he considered a trifling misunderstanding, he found that she had left the city.

"Well, I declare!" he exclaimed,
quite startled.

But somehow he didn't miss her.
On the days he did not report at the institute he went to the shops, looked over the pretty things displayed there and was always found where there were special inducements offered, he petted all the children he passed and asked their mothers if they were nursed or brought up on the bottle and if the latter what food was used.

The news of the day failed to interest
him, and whenever he was found reading the newspapers it was noticed that he was studying the advertisements.

One day the two doctors who had operated on him came in discussing the results of their experiment.

"Well, doctor," said Pendleton, "what do you think?"

"Until yesterday," replied Slason,
"my only conclusions were that the transfusion of blood of the female into the male conduces to femininity. But something occurred yesterday afternoon which leads me to think that woman's blood transfused into a man may produce feminine perceptive
tastes in man."

"What is the incident that has led you to this scientific conclusion?"

"Well, yesterday afternoon, while passing down the street I heard the sound of drums, followed by the inspiring strains of music. Waiting to learn the cause, presently I saw a procession coming, attended by the usual crowd. As it drew nearer I observed that the participants were women. At their head, holding aloft a banner with the words 'Votes for Women' on it, marched our subject, Mr. Wattles."

The doctor paused, while his collaborator in the field of science sat in deep thought. Finally he said:

"And your inference is?"

"That the transfusion of woman's blood into man has for its resultant—"

"Surely no deteriorating effect, doctor?"

"Not at all. On the contrary, it gives the man an insight into those rear-ings women have for their rights."

The two men sat silently thinking for some time, when Dr. Pendleton said:

"Doctor, I propose that the records of this experiment be burned."

"Why not?" asked Slason.

"If published they would be a terrible blow to the male sex."

"In what respect, doctor? Explain yourself."

"I will do so by asking you a question. Suppose Mr. Slason should hear that the infusion of woman's blood in you would give you a clearer perception of the field of science and art in depth than he?"

"Great heavens, doctor, she would make a Wattles of me at once!"

"And Mrs. Pendleton would do the same by her husband."

"So would every married woman by her husband."

"And every girl by her lover?"

"This is a dangerous scientific truth and we have developed."

"Dangerous? The human male stands on a volcano!"

"This is the report tomorrow. What have we better do with him?"

"Kill him!"

"No, no. Such an act would give the anti-scientific woman's blood
the reputation of being a method that would be ruinous to scientific investigation."

"If I have it," said Dr. Pendleton. "We will transfuse woman's blood into him to kill every manly instinct. Then he will not be an example of what you have deduced."

"You have had the nail on the head, doctor."

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

One of the most expert women an-giers in Great Britain is Lady In-house.

Mrs. Crystal Eastman Reedick is a New York lawyer and investigator for the Russell Sage foundation of the opportunities for women's work.

Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevenson of Portland, Me., has been appointed by President Taft as a delegate to the thirteenth international congress of scientists. The congress will be held at The Hague in September.

Mrs. Jatta's favorite book is "Pride and Prejudice," by Jane Austen, and this old novel is the gift which she has invariably made to the daughters of her friends who are about to make their debut in society.

Miss Paula Laddie was the only woman in the graduating class of the New Jersey Law school, she carried on her law studies while prohibition officer of Jersey City. Her object in studying law was the better to fit her self for her mother's work and to enable her to assist the needy with legal advice.

CURED OF CONSTIPATION

Mr. Andrews praises Dr.

Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S.,

writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This illness never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many diseases

that constipation brings in its train.

Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It

NOT A FISH STORY.

The Narrator Could Qualify In That

Class, However.

"When I was a boy," said the story

teller, "I lived in the oil country and my grandfather owned a big farm

there. They had never found oil within five or six miles of grandfather's

place, but they were gradually edging

along in his direction, and we all expected that sooner or later someone would uncover a gusher there, and that would mean a fortune for grandfather, and as I was his only heir I natu-

ally look upon the considerable interest

that master Well, one day a rich oil man came along and made an offer for grandfather's farm. They had struck a good well near by, and everybody

had come to the conclusion that grandfather's farm was in the middle of the oil belt. Our friends advised against the acceptance of the first offer, which would have been twenty times as much as the farm would have been worth if no oil had been there,

but it was certain that if oil were discovered on the farm we could get $50,-

000 and perhaps $100,000 more than the price mentioned by the first bidder.

"Seeing that grandfather wouldn't sell, the man leased a couple of acres

from him and started to put down a test well. It was expected that they would have to wait a long time before they could reach the sand in which the oil was located, and when they got down that depth they found that the sand was

where the hard luck comes in, and so

they decided to torpedo the thing.

"The scheme was to put a lot of nitro-glycerine into the well and blow

it up. That often made gasblers

what at first seemed to be dry holes.

They brought a large quantity of explosive stuff to the farm and stored

it in a little shed, expecting to blow up the well the next day. Here's

where the hard luck comes in, and so

they decided to torpedo the thing.

"It happened that I had a goat, and his goat got into the shed where the explosive was stored. Boy! he rushed in to get the goat out, and grandfather and a crowd of the well-drillers

saw my goat being hurried out of the shed. For a moment nobody could move or even speak. Then grandfather af-

Women In Business.

"Women," said the bromide sen-tentiously, "ought to live at home and attend to the household. They can't stand the killing pace of business life."

"Oh, can't they?" asked the man who had made a few observations.

"They seem to do fairly well in business. You never find many of them in sanitariums. You'll find lots of business men there. You also will find many married women there, and as a rule those who have had the least to do with business. The sanitatariums of the country find their most numerous patrons to be society

women, who never have given business a thought in their lives. You know of course, that farmers' wives

live in insane asylums. Don't you worry about women in business. It is good for them. They are not likely to push it to an insane limit. All they ever will learn of it never will hurt them. It will do them the rest of the world more good than harm."

He Found His Equal.

The merchant was busy and was having a troublesome time at the telephone. Central, who tried to get the number for him, appeared to be inexperienced or asleep. Ordinarily the most patient of men, he finally lost

his patience.

"Look here," he shouted, "either get me 1234 or give me some place

where I may at least talk to my intellectual father."

Silence for a moment, and then over the wire came a loud "Hello!" in a man's voice.

Mr. Brownlow was much relieved.

"What place is that?" he asked.

"The hospital for the insane," came

the answer.

Pitchers.

Said the head of the crockery and china department, "Every day

we have to test pitchers with water to prove that liquids will not run back from the pitcher's mouth. If the housewife will only make sure to get a pitcher whose mouth curves down

slightly she will have no trouble."

The Way He Looked at It.

Shared the Knowledge

The night train was approaching

Blackheath, outside of London, and two Americans, unacquainted with the locality, were in doubt as to the sta-

window into the unresponsive dark-

"Is it Blackheath?" inquired the first.

"The Lord only knows," replied the Messrs. Mutz and Scott, of B.C., Open Up Valuable Coal Property at The West End of Blairmore, Where a Large Number of Miners Will Shortly Be Employed.

THE PASS METROPOLIS THE SCENE OF NEW INDUSTRIES

And Soon This Busy Hub Will Be Surrounded By Labor Ensuring Enterprises, and Development of Our Natural Resources Will Continue on Larger Scale Than Ever.

Good fortune seems to be paying special attention to Blairmore, so much so that it is difficult for one to keep track of all the recent enterprises and new developments which this town is being favored with. Why such a highly pleasing state of affairs should exist in Blairmore is somewhat puzzling to those towns that are not nearly so fortunate, but the conclusion which is that the character of its citizens along with their progressive and congenial spirit are the reasons for such a great wave of prosperity which kind Providence has seen fit to bestow upon the "Hub of the Pass." Although the strike has been on for several months, Blairmore has scarcely felt it because the many new developments and extra means of employment in other lines have more than made up for the loss occasioned by the temporary cessation of work at the mines.

And now, shortly after informing our readers of the large cement works which will shortly commence operations near the sanatorium at Frank and adjoining the east end of Blairmore, we have to announce that as two large cement plants will soon be in operation at the east end of Blairmore so will two immense coal mines be making large shipments of black diamonds from the west end of the same town within the next few months.

A. Mutz, of Fernie, B.C., and G. H. Scott, are opening up their large and valuable coal property at the south-west portion of Blairmore, immediately west of the West Canadian Collieries' immense coal lands and have already several experienced miners at work driving a tunnel on a seven-foot seam of high-grade coal. This new coal property runs two miles south of the C.P.R. and has a half mile frontage. There are four large coal seams on the property all of which may be very easily worked. The seams have a pitch of 45 degrees, south-west, and strike north and south.

A tippie will be erected on the property at once and the necessary machinery for an up-to-date plant will be forthwith installed. More men will be engaged shortly and everything possible to make the daily output reach a high average in the near future will be done.

With the opening up of this coal property another well-welded link will be added to the already long chain of prosperous enterprises that may be seen operating within the boundaries of Blairmore.

Successful Hunters Kill Two Goats

Nike Jerak and Charlie Meka shot and killed two goats near the Crowe Nest Mountain, while hunting in that vicinity last week and brought the skins to Blairmore on Monday evening last to be dressed by the local taxidermist, J.S. Murray. The two hunters report having a splendid time in the woods and say that they got the objects of their search without much trouble. They believe that many large herds of goats are in the mountains only a few miles from here.

President White Meets Miners at Lethbridge

John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who arrived from the United States last week to look into the labor trouble connected with the organization of which he is the head, met about thirty delegates from the twenty locals in this district, at Lethbridge on Wednesday of this week for the purpose of further discussing the present condition in District 18 and to endeavor, if possible to come to an early settlement. It is certain that a large number of miners are tired of their long idleness and are anxious for an early resumption of work at the mines under the terms proposed in the majority report of the conciliation board.

Elections Will Be Held Inside of a Month

A meeting of the Blairmore council was held in Budd's hall on Monday evening last. There were present, T. Frayer, chairman; W. A. Beebe, secretary-treasurer; and councillors H. E. Lyon and L. Dutil. It was moved by H. E. Lyon and seconded by L. Dutil that the chairman be authorized to take all the necessary steps the completion of the water works—Carried.

An application was read from the Blairmore Opera House company, Ltd., for water connection on Fifth avenue, north from Victoria street, with a six inch pipe.

It was moved by H. E. Lyon, and seconded that said application be granted and that work be done immediately—Carried.

A few small bills were ordered paid after which Chairman Frayer presented the following telegram to be read:

"Edmonton, Oct. 7, 1911
"Thomas Frayer, Esq.,
"Chairman of Village Council,
"Blairmore, Alta.

"An order in council was passed yesterday for the purpose of incorporating Blairmore into a town municipality, naming you as the returning officer.

(Signed) "L. F. Clary"
"Deputy Attorney General"
The foregoing telegram from the

Macleod to Have a New Newspaper

Macleod is to have another newspaper in the near future. It will be started as a weekly but the understanding is that a daily paper is eventually contemplated as the town grows. The paper will be controlled by the same syndicate which runs the Calgary Herald, the Edmonton Journal and the Lethbridge News. It will be Conservative in politics. The name is not yet announced and the editor is, we understand, coming from the east. Quarters have been engaged in the building on Twenty-third Street, opposite the Macleod Club, and the plant, formerly used in the publication of the Fort Saskatchewan Reporter, is said to be on its way here.—Advertiser.

The Commissioners Finish Their Work

The board of commission appointed by the dominion and provincial governments and the Canadian Coal Consolidated, Ltd., to report on the condition of Turtle Mountain near Frank, have just completed an exhaustive inspection and return to Ottawa this week, where they, with other noted authorities, will put their report in proper form and the result will likely be made known inside of three weeks from this date. The three gentlemen who comprise the board are some of the best mining and geological experts that can be found on the North American continent and the decision which will be reached by such capable men is sure to be taken with considerable credence by many, including those who have large interests in Frank whether the report will be detrimental to them or not.

Irish Editor says Canucks are Surly

Mr. R. H. H. Baird, of Belfast, Ireland, newspaper owner, who travelled with the British journalists from Halifax to Vancouver, at the invitation of the Canadian government, reached the city yesterday from the West. In a conversation with a newspaper man last night he said he had no flattering picture to paint of the country. Mr. Baird is the owner of seven newspapers, one of which has many editions daily and a weekly circulation approaching 300,000. Mr. Baird complained of the treatment received by the travellers at the hands of the porters and baggage-men and although he has collected sufficient matter for many articles, he is at his wits end to know what is really the truth about Canada.

Mr. Baird contends that the youth of the country are receiving a course of education to elevated to be of practical use to him in the Dominion. He found the imported white labor too lazy to get proper results, and said the real estate dealings were an exaggeration. It was a mania everywhere, and some one would get bitten in the long run.

In the West he found young women who had emigrated, in search of husbands disillusioned, and the average Canadian, he said, was surly and uncivil, and treated the womanhood with greater harshness than he found in the Old Country. He was pleased provincial government gives Blairmore the right to be called a "town" and gives her many advantages which she has heretofore been deprived of. Mr. Frayer, the returning officer, has been granted the power by the government in his new appointment, to call for a town election within the next month when a mayor and six aldermen may be elected to manage affairs of this promising and thriving town.

He gave it as his opinion that if the same laws existed in Ireland and England as in Canada there would be less emigration on the part of the Irish.
